

OH+S

DHB Occupational Health + Safety Conference

Speaker Biography

Gavin Johnson

Gavin has provided Health and Safety Management System planning, and training guidance to many public and private organisations throughout Australia and New Zealand. His understanding of business management systems and their framework link with health and safety, diligence and corporate governance is reflected in his consultancy and training. He is the head of faculty and course director of the New Zealand Institute of Managements successful - Level 6 - Diploma in Health and Safety Management. Gavin also worked with the National Safety Council of Australia - promoted to Manager of the South Australian division in 1986 and to National - Principal Consultant in 1996.

Gavin's qualifications, education and job role experience have been gradually gained not only through formal tertiary education but through active client involvement across Australia and New Zealand. This added to his previous responsibility roles in private enterprise has seen him responsible for production, planning and company management. He has also held national and international training portfolios with the Junior Chamber of Commerce.